DR. WESLEY BREADY TALK INTERESTS CLUB MEMBERS

The organizers of the Canadian Club are not satisfied to arrange a program that is just ordinary, but to make it something worth-while to the appreciative audience that usually assembles.

Last Wednesday night was no exception and Dr. Bready delighted his audience with some interesting news concerning Insurance and Death. Many who had a heavy idea of the facts regarding these efforts to help him in his work in East Asia, that he was making life unbearable for millions of the skilled and casual workers who were deprived of the opportunity to earn a living and to help him give them a clear cut exposition of the efforts of the British Government to give to these people and their descendants a fair deal in the struggle of the rights participating.

Briefly the unemployment insurance scheme is a good one, especially the workers are not employed or contribute equal amounts with the Government is responsible for a sum equal to their combined contributions. The amount is based on the drawing of benefits and no one is able to draw more than stands to his credit.

"The Club" is a straight cash relief and is a mere pittance to enable the unemployed to keep up the house payments. The unemployed don't have to pay taxes and the Government is responsible for the pensions and probably staying out next winter.

As a charitable reference to the end of Shaftesbury and Barnardo lectured a lecture that was thoroughly enjoyed by the audience filling the hall.

Mr. Gifford and his family assisted the opening with enjoyable musical selections, and Mr. Purcell, president of the Gleichen Club, opened and adopted the speaker of the evening.

Dr. Wesley Bready is Canadian born having early thrown on his own resources he worked his way through college receiving a scholarship from Queen's with high credit. Supporting himself by writing and speaking he pursued post-graduate studies in England and was given the degree of Doctor of Philosophy from the London University for his original work in connection with the study of the child.

He is now working in the U.S.A. and has been well received. Don't miss him when he comes back to Gleichen Monday night at Bas-

Present Day Heroes

This is a good time to keep eyes open for heroes, writes William T. Ellis, editor of his syndicated newspaper articles.

None of us ever quite grow away from our childhood admiration for heroes, and we grow older sharing their admiration. Heroes are more common in fact than tales of heroes. They are here to stay, though many of us have long since outgrown the desire to hear of by-gone ages. There are heroes among us at all times, and in all walks of life.

We would wish Mr. Ellis' words to all those who are working hard for their self-respecting families who have little or nothing now; the employers who are straining financial and mental resources to keep their workers on the payroll; the women who are magnificently bearing the heaviest burdens of all; the public health workers who are keeping their health and healing every effort toward healthfulness.

We think of a young Scotch lad, without education, whose parents with a misfortune of being unable to pay him wages sent him to the coal country, who came to Western Canada and became a labourer at a mine, sending of his meagre earnings to his mother. Then came crop failures and depression, and he became one of the big army of unemployed. Coming to the city he was offered a job as a labourer at a nearby plant, perhaps only a fifteen minute task, some days in succession nothing at all, but he never whined, never lost his courage, never allowed himself to slip into despair. He was just as particular about his cleaning up as any equipment or instrument invented later than 1492. Twenty-nine years ago he was granted a League of Nations, have expressed approval of the voyage. The "Santa Domingo" was a large ship from Potosi, the starting point of Columbus' venture to be built into the monumental lightning rod at San Domingo and to commemorate the discovery of America.

With head up and a smile of confidence on his face, he has earned for itself a right to be called a hero. God, there are myriad like him, the heroes of the times. He is an educated man, married with a small family and his own home. He is the guardian of a tradition, no more; yet he is confident that there is a good time coming. His friends do not know how severely he has been plucked. He keeps up his normal social relationships and activity. Whenever he goes, he radiates optimism. His faith in the future is unshakable. He is getting out of this hard experience. He is more of a man, by every standard, than he was when he held down what seemed an assured and comfortable existence.

Then there are our school teacher heroines—scores of them. Instance after instance could be recorded where a school board, confronted with the necessity of laying off one or two teachers, engaged in a race to retain the services of their salary with others in order that she might remain employed and the school maintained in all its efficiency. These young women are proving they are "real" teachers; not merely standing a job in the classroom, but living it. They are teaching the finest of all their professional attainments: that is, their acts teaching the finest of all lessons in character and citizenship.

Yes, there are the days of heroes. Thousands of them will never be known, to others, their names and courage may never be sung; but they are leaving an impress on their generation, and making a contribution to the present and future of their country beyond all measurement, or application of any known standard of value.

Plans for the memorial have not been completed, but it is expected that its central feature will be a huge tower, surrounded by an ever-burning light, to be located in the political area as an aviation beacon.

A nation-wide committee, with President Horatio H. Lawrence, chairman, is working on the project to form organizations throughout the world for the purpose of raising funds for the memorial.

Navigating By Old Methods

Spanish Naval Officer Will Repeat Voyage Of Columbus

To repeat the voyage of Columbus under similar conditions to the plan made by the Spanish admiral, Capt. Don Julio Guillen. A report in the Santa Barbara news said the trip will be made in an effort to prove that his crew last of 25, as compared with Columbus' 18, had navigated the ocean by old methods and will use no plane or equipment or instrument invented later than 1492. Twenty-nine years ago the League of Nations, have expressed approval of the voyage.

The "Santa Barbara" will leave on December 1st, aimed at "correcting defects" encountered during the first voyage.

FLEAS and POOR COAL

Mark Twain said: "After all, it's a pretty good thing for a dog to have fleas—it keeps him from worrying over being a dog."

And so it is with the man who continues to burn poor coal—it keeps him so busy with real trouble that he has no time to worry over the imaginary ones that never happen...

Work on a highway that will link Jasper National Park and Banff National Park in the Canadian Rockies. Mountains a mile or nearly two hundred feet high, has begun. The forty, through which the new highway will pass, is at present comparatively little known, and with exception of a few short stretches, the only journey from Lake Louise to Jasper at present is possible by pack train over an old Indian trail. The route of the highway will be one of the unparallelled scenic beauty, and offers an alternative mountain route to the many tourists now visiting Banff and Jasper.

The high reputation of Canada for its ability to compete with foreign countries in the production of goods with foreign powers is an example that starts considerable interest in the Canadian branch of the League of Nations, and indicates that Canada is making a very important part in the coming discussions.

Says Colonel David Carnegie, C.B.E., lecturer, who recently promoted for Great Britain aboard the liner Empress of Canada:

Beginning their first Canadian tour, the skaters of the University of British Columbia, arriving at Seattle by Canadian Pacific steamship Montreal, went to the University of Washington, and thence went to the University of Minnesota, where they will compete against each other in the various university contests. The teams were welcomed at the Winter station, Minneapolis, by Dr. D. L. Ross, son of the Governor-General, himself, and the Legion Hall sponsored by the Girls Guild.
